The Pittsburgh Courier is a national African American newspaper. It is the only African American newspaper to be published daily. The newspaper was founded in 1940 by John H. Johnson. It is headquartered in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. The newspaper has a circulation of over 100,000 copies daily. It is known for its coverage of African American issues and its support of the civil rights movement. The newspaper was a major force in the fight for equality during the 1950s and 1960s. It was a vocal critic of segregation and discrimination. It was also a strong supporter of the civil rights leaders of the time, including Martin Luther King Jr. The newspaper's coverage of the civil rights movement was widely praised and helped to bring national attention to the struggle for equality. The Pittsburgh Courier is still a major force in the African American community today. It continues to provide news and information to its readers and to advocate for the rights of African Americans.
